UW research supports community food systems

LARAMIE (AP) — Two years into a five-year, $5 million research project on community food systems, University of Wyoming assistant professor Christine Porter is more hopeful about the work than she was when she started.

Porter and a team of research partners are following five community groups developing local food systems with the goal of learning how to support such organizations while also figuring out how they work best.

Porter said after seeing the impact of $40 mini-grants — one piece of the project — or quantifying the harvest produced in a typical Laramie garden, she's gained enthusiasm for the tangible results such work can have in a community.

"It matters even more than I thought, with even more immediate, measurable benefits,"

The project, called Food Dignity, is funded by the U.S. Department of Agriculture through the largest USDA grant UW has received.

Porter, who works in the Division of Kinesiology and Health, is collaborating with a team from Cornell University, where she earned a Ph.D. in community nutrition. Team members and community partners gathered in Laramie recently to discuss their work.

Porter said she wants to make sure universities are part of the community food system movement that's growing around the country. Community groups participating in the project receive $60,000 a year to expand their work, while the academic partners document. The academic community is uniquely positioned to disseminate information in a way each local group can't, she said.

"There's a need to learn from the work nationally and also to promote and share the ideas that they have, and that's one thing we can do as academics," Porter tells the Laramie Boomerang.

Mont. considering loan to Australian coal exporter

BILLINGS, Mont. (AP) — An Australian company seeking to take control of a Montana coal mine and boost exports to Asia is in discussions with state officials about a potential $10 million loan from an economic development trust, representatives of the state and Ambre Energy said Friday.

The loan would be paired with $10 million from a private bank and used to buy and refurbish mining equipment, said Herb Kulow with the Montana Board of Investments. Both sides said the talks have been preliminary and stressed that the amount of any loan could change.

The possibility of state assistance for Ambre Energy comes as the company's attempt to take over the Decker coal mine near the Wyoming border was delayed in early May for unspecified reasons. Ambre coowns the mine with Cloud Peak Energy but is seeking full control in a deal worth up to $64 million.

A low-interest loan from the Montana's Coal Tax Trust to help the company realize its ambitions would likely further aggravate rising tensions over coal exports. Those reached record levels last year with 126 million tons of the fuel sent abroad.

A related effort by Ambre to build ports in Oregon and Washington so it can start shipping coal to Asia faces determined opposition from environmentalists and some West Coast elected officials. The company cleared a significant hurdle Friday, as Oregon regulators issued draft permits for the company's Port of Morrow export terminal along the Columbia river.

'The reward is increased employment, increased salaries, more tax revenue coming into the state of Montana.'

Herb Kulow

Montana Board of Investments

The Decker mine was once among the largest in the U.S., producing more than 10 million tons of coal a year. It was on track through April to extract just 1.5 million tons this year, after laying off more than onethird of its workers in recent months, according to U.S. Department of Labor data.

Ambre has said it could ramp up mining once it completes the deal with Cloud Peak. Ambre also coowns a second mine, in Wyoming, and last year announced a deal to supply up to 5.5 million tons of coal annually to utilities in South Korea.

Coal companies are counting on greater export volumes in coming years to make up for declines in domestic consumption after many utilities switched to cheap natural gas. Trains would carry the fuel from the Powder River Basin of Montana and Wyoming across the northwestern U.S. and also down to the Gulf Coast.

That's a scenario the industry's detractors contend could tie up rail lines and pollute communities with coal dust. Export critics also say burning the fuel in Asian power plants would cancel out efforts to reduce greenhouse gas emissions in the U.S.

A different view predominates in Montana. Coal mining provides substantial revenues for state government and offers lucrative jobs in rural areas otherwise dependent on agriculture.

Kulow said that for the state Board of Investments, a loan to Ambre is about keeping the Decker mine operational and bringing back some of the jobs it's lost.

'This is an investment that the state of Montana would be making in this company," he said, adding that the state would not have a direct ownership stake. "The reward is increased employment, increased salaries, more tax revenue coming into the state of Montana."

Local churches give day of community service

BY HANNAH WIEST THE SHERIDAN PRESS

SHERIDAN — Approximately 450 people from four local churches skipped church Sunday — but it was for a good cause. They wanted to get outside the church walls and put their faith into action around the Sheridan community.

Part of a national movement known as Faith in Action Sunday, the morning was an opportunity for believers to "be the church," said Tony Forman, senior pastor at Cornerstone

'It was an opportunity to get outside of the walls of the church and go be the church, go do acts of kindness."

> Tony Forman Pastor, Cornerstone Church

"It was an opportunity to get outside of the walls of the church and go be the church, go do acts of kindness," Forman said. "It's not about what we deserve; it's about God's mercy. It's physically going out and showing the love and mercy of God to our community."

Faith in Action participants completed nearly 40 service projects around town between 9 a.m. and noon. The day began with a short worship service and ended with lunch in Kendrick Park.

Projects included yard work and house repairs for widows and single mothers in the community. One group even built a small porch to replace a badly damaged one for someone in Service groups also did trash pickup along the interstate and the Sheridan pathways system and visited Sugarland Ridge to sing songs and encourage elderly residents. Projects that couldn't be completed in a couple hours will be ongoing for the next several weeks.

Faith in Action Sunday is held the first Sunday in June each year. Forman hopes more churches will begin to participate over the years.

'We can talk about it, we can celebrate God's goodness to us, but then we need to go out and demonstrate it to those around us," Forman said.

Churches that participated Sunday were Bethesda Worship Center, Cornerstone Church, Grace Anglican Church and Sheridan Wesleyan Church.

Wildlife study uses reflectors along Wyo. highways

WORLAND (AP) — The Wyoming Department of Transportation is using reflector poles in several areas in the state to see if they help prevent wildlife/vehicle

WYDOT spokesman Cody Beers tells the Northern Wyoming Daily News the goal is to determine if the reflectors are instrumental in keeping deer off the highway and to figure out if there's a pattern to the animal crossings. The poles are sometimes covered to see how the deer react to not having the reflections of the headlights, and the display is switched each month.

The poles have been installed along roads between Kirby and the Wedding of the Waters near Thermopolis, along a section between Basin and Greybull, and near Riverton.

The study is being conducted by the Teton Science School near Jackson Hole.

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK (AP) - Researchers plan to start capturing grizzly bears in Yellowstone National Park starting Monday and continuing through Park officials say the work by biologists with the Interagency Grizzly Bear Study Team is part of ongoing monitoring of grizzlies in the Greater Yellowstone Ecosystem.

Officials say the capturing will be done in remote areas of the park by team members using baited traps.

The bears will be anesthetized so biologists can collect scientific samples and attach radio collars.

Officials say none of the trapping sites will be near established hiking trails or backcountry campsites, and all the trap sites will be closed and posted with warn-

Early spring means early tick season in Wyoming

CASPER (AP) — Health officials are warning that tick season in Wyoming is coming early this year.

Ryan Harmon with Natrona County Health tells KCWY-TV an early spring brought with it wet storms in April and May, increasing vegetation and leading to more ticks.

Tangney Gray, a veterinarian in Casper, also warns that ticks already are showing up on cats and dogs. He says deterrents available through a veterinarian are much more effective than those at pet stores.

Goats tiptoe into fragile sheep country in NW Wyo.

MONDAY, JUNE 3, 2013

JACKSON (AP) — A pathogen that's linked to fatal pneumonia has been detected in the nonnative mountain goats that are expanding into the territory of the Teton bighorn sheep herd in northwest Wyoming.

Wyoming Game and Fish Department biologists tranquilized four mountain goats from the Palisades herd in April and found a bacteria strain in one of the goats.

Game and Fish wildlife biologist Gary Fralick says efforts to monitor the goats will continue in hopes of learning how prevalent the bacteria is in the herd.

Biologists are worried about the bighorn sheep. The bacteria is thought to be implicated in the deaths of 40 percent of the collared bighorn sheep in a separate Jackson sheep herd over the past year.

LOAN: No loan until sale of Decker final

FROM 1

Kulow added that no loan will be made until Ambre's deal with Cloud Peak is completed and state officials can be assured that contracts are in place to keep the Decker mine operational.

A loan also would be dependent on Ambre putting up adequate collateral to ensure the state could recoup its investment if the company cannot repay the money.

Ambre spokeswoman Liz to include an additional 40 Fuller said the loan program offers a good incentive for the company to work with the state. But she added that it was uncertain at this point what will come of the company's dealings with the Board of Investments.

'There's no proposal yet, just discussions about general terms," she said. She added that a $10 million state loan was "in the neighborhood" of what the company would need to finance the equipment it wants to buy and refur-

A pending application before the federal Bureau of Land Management would expand Ambre's lease at the Decker mine million tons of coal.

Conservation groups including the Northern Plains Resource Council and WildEarth Guardians on Friday urged the BLM to not grant approval for the expansion until detailed environmental studies are conducted. They also questioned the potential state loan.

"It's way too fast," said WildEarth Guardians' Jeremy Nichols.

"They're pushing for money from the state, they're pushing for a lease extension from BLM. Is this really where Montana taxpayers want their money to go, to help an Australian coal company ship coal to Asia?"

Feeding Laramie Valley is a local community partner in the project. Founder Gayle Woodsum said 20 percent of Albany County residents live in poverty, and 8,000 are foodinsecure.

"We have our own challenges," she said. But last year Feeding Laramie Valley tracked the harvests from eight local gardens and found they produced enough vegetables, on average, to feed a person his or her USDA-recommended 2.5 cups a day for a year. And that's with Laramie's 56-day growing season.

"They were seriously productive," Porter

East New York Farms in Brooklyn, N.Y., was founded in the 1990s to address several needs identified by the community, according to director Sarita Daftary. There weren't many green spaces or safe public spaces, residents suffered high rates of diabetes and obesity, they lacked access to healthy food, and young people couldn't find jobs.

However, the community did have a lot of vacant lots and residents who brought gardening experience from around the world.

We wanted to develop those resources," Daftary said.

Jemila Sequeira, who coordinates the Whole Foods Project in Ithaca, N.Y., said even a seemingly affluent community has residents who struggle to feed themselves. And the people who need the most help are left out of the food system.

"If there's one person struggling to feed themselves healthy food, to me that's a concern," she said.

Porter said a sustainable food system is a necessity, as the industrial system is draining aquifers and using up soil and oil.

'Lunch Line' showing June 13 at DSA community room

FROM STAFF REPORTS

SHERIDAN — "Lunch Line" is the next film in the Downtown Sheridan Association, Sheridan Farmers Market and Sheridan College agriculture department's "Food for Thought" series.

"Lunch Line" takes a new look at the school lunch program by exploring its past, current challenges and opportunities for the future.

It illustrates that, while the National School Lunch Program has become an easy target for critics, the program has a unique capacity for addressing child welfare, the public good and the problem of hunger.

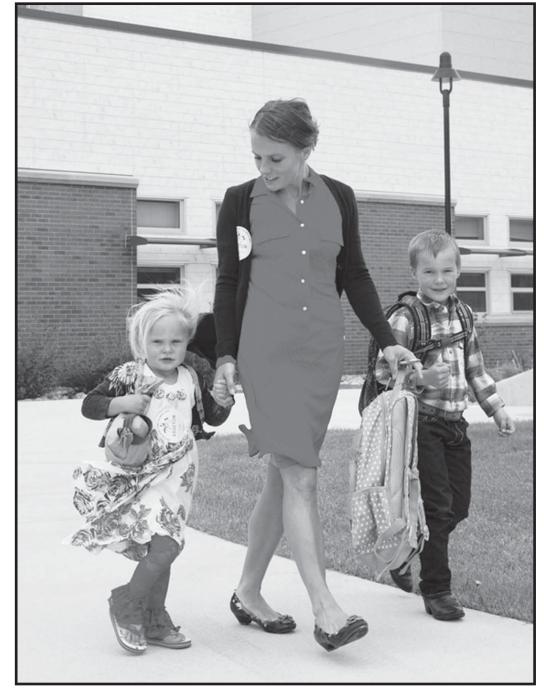

"Lunch Line" shows how those on all sides of the lunch line can work together for a common good — the health of America's kids. This film will be shown June 13 at 6 p.m. at the DSA community room, 121 S. Main St.

The final two films in this series will be presented June 27 and July 11.

GLOSSARY OF TERMS

Default: Failure to fulfill an obligation, especially the obligation to make payments when due to a lender.

Encumbrance: A right attached to the property of another that may lessen its value, such as a lien, mortgage, or easement.

Foreclosure: The legal process of terminating an owner's interest in property, usually as the result of a default under a mortgage. Foreclosure may be accomplished by order of a court or by the statutory process known as foreclosure by advertisement (also known as a power of sale foreclosure). Lien: A legal claim asserted against the property of another, usually as security for a debt or obligation.

Mortgage: A lien granted by the owner of property to provide security for a debt or obligation.

Power of Sale: A clause commonly written into a mortgage authorizing the mortgagee to advertise and sell the property in the event of default. The process is governed by statute, but is not supervised by any court. Probate: The court procedure in which a decedent's liabilities are settled and her assets are distributed to her heirs. Public Notice: Notice given to the public or persons affected regarding certain types of legal proceedings, usually by publishing in a newspaper of general circulation. This notice is usually required in matters that concern the public.

Ligocki named Milward Simpson award finalist

FROM STAFF REPORTS

SHERIDAN — Hailey Ligocki has been named a 2013 Milward Simpson

The annual award is given to the best male and best female senior high school athlete in the state of Wyoming in honor of the former U.S. Sen. Milward Simpson. Simpson was also a multi-sport athlete for the University of Wyoming.

Ligocki, headed for the University of Wyoming basketball team in the fall, excelled in both tennis and basketball during her time at Sheridan High School. She played soccer as well.

Ten finalists, five boys and five girls, will be narrowed to a boys and girls winner by the Simpson Selection Committee. Also nominated were Madison Legerski, Laramie; Lexi Erickson, Star Valley; Kassidy Scott, Douglas; and Shanda Post, Lander.

This marks the fourth-straight year Sheridan High School has had an athlete on the list of finalists. Riley Ryan was a finalist last year, while siblings Kayla and Austin Woodward won the award in 2011 and 2010, respectively.

Wyoming girls all-stars sweep S.D.

FROM STAFF REPORTS

SHERIDAN — Hailey Ligocki scored 10 points Friday night and 17 Saturday, helping the Wyoming girls allstars sweep South Dakota.

Mali Wright added three points in the 90-86 Friday win at Spearfish, S.D., and then five Saturday in Gillette as Wyoming came out on top 91-88. Lickocki led Wyoming allstar scorers Saturday night. She and Wright now move to the Wyoming-Montana all-star series this weekend in Sheridan and Billings. The girls play at Sheridan College Friday night and then in Billings Saturday. The Wyoming boys all-stars lost both games to South Dakota 101-87 Saturday and 112-80 Friday.

Jets sweep

FROM STAFF REPORTS

SHERIDAN — The Sheridan Jets took their first weekend sweep of the still-young season Saturday in Casper. Sheridan again hit the ball well as they beat the Casper Roughnecks by scores of 13-6 and 13-2. Tyler Stauffer and James Timberlake pitched wins for the Jets.

"It was nice to go on the road and get a couple victories," head coach Ryan Murner said. "It took us a while in game one to get started offensively. "We were chasing a lot of pitches out of the hitting zone and getting ourselves out. Our pitching kept us in the game until we could get things going at the plate. Once we took better approaches at the plate, we created some offense and forced them to make pitches."

Sheridan will play a makeup doubleheader against the Billings Blue Jays Thursday at 5 and 7 p.m. at Thorne-Rider Stadium.

Opening weekend for BHPC scrapped

FROM STAFF REPORTS

BIG HORN — The Big Horn Polo Club had to delay their opening weekend scrimmage yesterday due to last week's rainstorms.

Perk Connell said Monday that they regretted weather interfering with their first event, and "we will be out in full force to entertain the public with our green horse antics" next weekend. A full schedule for the polo club can be found at their website: bighornpoloclub.com/schedule.html.

Troopers swept in Wheatland

FROM STAFF REPORTS

SHERIDAN — The Sheridan Troopers were swept by Wheatland Sunday. After dropping the first game 9-6 in Wheatland, they fell 11-1 in the second.

Sheridan (1-0, 7-7) plays their second league game of the season Tuesday night in Gillette against the Roughriders (15-15). After almost a month on the road, they'll return home in a week, June 11, for another game with the Roughriders. Both games are scheduled for 6 p.m.

That will be followed by their big trip to Omaha, Neb., where they'll play a five-game tournament beginning June 14.

Fowler's two homers lead Rockies to 7-2 win over Dodgers

DENVER (AP) — The Colorado Rockies treated the "Big Cat" to quite a power show. With Andres Galarraga in attendance to throw out the first pitch, the Rockies reverted back to his days as ring leader of the "Blake Street Bombers," hitting four homers.

Dexter Fowler led the way with two homers off fill-in starter Matt Magill and Jorge De La Rosa pitched seven effective innings, helping the Rockies to a 7-2 win over the slumping Los Angeles Dodgers on Sunday.

'Think we had some guys trying to impress the 'Big Cat,'" manager Walt Weiss said.

It worked. He even wanted in on the act. Before the game, Galarraga volunteered to pinch hit if necessarily.

The Rockies wouldn't need him or his prodigious power on this afternoon. Galarraga was free to soak up the scene in his first visit back to Colorado in nearly six years as the team honored him with his own bobblehead Sunday.

"It's good to see him again," Todd Helton said. "He looked great. Enjoyed having him here.

Fowler did his best Galarraga impression as the speedy outfielder turned in his second multihomer game of the season. Helton and Michael Cuddyer added solo homers as the Rockies took two of three from Los Angeles. De La Rosa (7-3) struggled early, but settled down as he allowed six hits and struck out five for his first career win against Los Angeles. He was 0-8 entering the game.

The lefty insisted he didn't do anything special Sunday. Well, he threw his blazing fastball more, but that's about it.

on to win Memorial

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) — Most of Kuchar holds the perks from winning the Memorial were evident to Matt Kuchar soon after his 20-foot birdie putt tumbled into the final hole Sunday.

He looked just beyond the 18th green to where 3-year-old son Carson was giving a high-five to tournament host Jack Nicklaus. He had the first multiple-win season of his PGA Tour career. Kuchar went to a career-best No. 4 in the world ranking. He is all but assured of returning to Muirfield Village in October as part of the Presidents Cup team.

"To walk off the green and to greet Mr. Nicklaus and have him congratulate me, that's something I'll certainly never forget," he said.

Perhaps the greatest benefit was one only Kuchar could feel confidence. And that's a big deal with the U.S. Open approaching.

Kuchar missed only one fairway and held off a hard-charging Kevin Chappell over the last three holes to close with a 4under 68 for a two-shot victory.

ROCKIES: Helton homers

FROM B1

"Last time, I think they were waiting for my changeup," he said. "Tried to use more of my fastball. That worked."

Magill (0-1) was recalled from Triple-A Albuquerque to step in for lefty Hyun-Jin Ryu, who was a late scratch with a bruised left foot. Magill had a forgettable outing, giving up seven runs — six earned — in six innings. He also allowed four homers and walked nine, before being pulled for a pinch hitter after throwing 110 pitches.

"I just couldn't find the zone," Magill said. "It was just one of those days. I didn't have legs on anything, and I just couldn't find it."

Cuddyer kept up his torrid hitting since coming off the disabled list on May 24, driving in a run with a sacrifice fly in the first and lining his 10th homer of the season in the fifth to the deepest part of Coors Field. He has his average up to .346.

Skip Schumaker drove in both runs for the Dodgers, who return home after a 1-4 stretch on the road. They beat Colorado on Friday, only to drop the next two. They haven't won a series at Coors since Sept. 27-29, 2010.

Helton rediscovered his power against Los Angeles, hitting a solo shot in the fourth on Sunday and a pinch-hit homer in the ninth on Friday. He had just three homers before the weekend.

"Better," Helton said of his swing. "But it's always a work in progress. Just stay with the process."

Fowler led off the game with a homer, the sixth time in his career he's accomplished that feat. It was also his first homer since April 29, when he hit a solo shot off the Dodgers to begin the game.

He wasn't done there, though, lining a two-run homer in the sixth. He also was walked twice, including one intentionally.

Fowler was picking up where he left off the day before, when his single in the 10th brought home the winning run.

"See ball, hit ball. When I think too much, that's when I get in trouble," Fowler said.

For the moment, the Dodgers are taking a wait-andsee approach with outfielder Carl Crawford, who left the game Saturday with a left hamstring injury. The team wants to see how he progresses before a move is However, that left the already injury-riddled Dodgers even more short-handed on the bench. Before the game, L.A. placed catcher A.J. Ellis (left oblique strain) on the 15-day disabled list to make room for Magill. This after already putting outfielder Matt Kemp on the disabled list last week with a strained right hamstring.

After the game, the Dodgers optioned Magill and will recall outfielder Yasiel Puig from Double-A Chattanooga on Monday. The 22-year-old Puig was hitting .313 with eight homers and 37 RBIs for the Lookouts.

"He's got power. He's got speed. He's got an arm," manager Don Mattingly said of Puig. "It's a tooled-up package, but then on the back side of that, you still say it's a young player. You don't want to build him up to the point where it's impossible to live up to expectations. So you'd like him to just be able to be a young player and be like every young player who

Notes: INF Hanley Ramirez (strained left hamstring) went 1-for-4 in a rehab stint for Class A Rancho Cucamonga on Saturday. Ramirez was given the day off Sunday. Colorado put closer Rafael Betancourt (strained groin) on the 15-day disabled list Sunday and purchased the contract of reflever Manuel Corpas from Triple-A Colorado Springs.

The last time Colorado hit four homers in a game was June 9, 2012. De La Rosa is 5-0 at Coors this sea-

Blackhawks beat Kings to take 2-0 lead

CHICAGO (AP) — There's a sign in the hallway that runs from the home locker room to the ice at the United Center. It says "EARN IT," and it was sure hard to argue that the Chicago Blackhawks haven't done just that during an impressive start to the Western Conference finals.

Bryan Bickell and Michal Handzus scored on consecutive shots in the second period, and Chicago chased goalie Jonathan Quick on its way to a 4-2 victory over the Los Angeles Kings in Game 2 on Sunday night.

Andrew Shaw and Brent Seabrook also scored as the rolling Blackhawks grabbed a 2-0 lead in the bestof-seven series with their fifth consecutive victory. Patrick Sharp and Brandon Saad had two assists apiece, and Corey Crawford made 29 saves in another solid performance.

The age-old question: Which came first? The fried chicken or the ... ADHD? It's not easy to answer. We know that obese moms are more likely to give birth to kids with ADHD (attention deficit hyperactivity disorder); people with ADHD (kids or adults) are more likely to be overweight (impulse-control issues?); and refined grains, sweet sodas, red meats and whole dairy increase a child's risk for ADHD. Now it seems that kids who eat diets high in saturated and trans fats (fried foods and red or processed meats) have a greater chance of developing several childhood disabilities, including impulsivity disorders, depression, anxiety and ADHD.

Five to eight times as many kids are depressed today as there were 50 years ago (less play, more pressure, more obesity), and anxiety is increasingly diagnosed. ADHD affects millions of U.S. children, some as young as 2 years old. Diagnosis is up 66 percent, especially among boys. And these issues often lead to problems as teens and major depression in adulthood.

So for your kids -- and you, too -- adopt an eating plan packed with fruit, vegetables, 100 percent whole grains, healthy fats (olive oil, omega-3 rich salmon and ocean trout, and ALA in walnuts, avocados, and canola and walnut oils). Go for portion control: Keep servings of animal protein about the size of your palm; fill two-thirds of your plate with veggies and whole grains! And get moving! That means 30 minutes of aerobics (minimum) daily for you and your kids and strength training with weights or stretch bands for you two to three times a week.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I took care of my grandmother until her death a few years ago, and now my mother is very sick. I feel angry because I'm only 23, and it seems all I have ever done is take care of sick people. I sit at the hospital sometimes just fuming.

Mom was a smoker and now she has cancer. I keep thinking if she hadn't smoked, she wouldn't be in this fix, and neither would I. I always visit her and try to do everything she asks of me, and yet I think I'm starting to hate her. I dread going to the hospital, sitting there and waiting for test results, etc. What kind of daughter has feelings like this? -- WORST DAUGHTER ON EARTH

DEAR DAUGHTER: Please stop beating yourself up. Your feelings are normal. You have a right to be angry that your mother is sick. At 23, vou have had an unusual amount of responsibility thrust upon you for someone your age. That her disease has taken over your life is also a reason to be angry.

However, please stop blaming her for her illness. Right now, you need each other. And nonsmokers get cancer, too. The American Cancer Society has support groups where family members can safely share their feelings.

Please check them out. DEAR ABBY: I'm 43 and went back to school the nontraditional way. I will graduate soon with my master of human services degree. I will be the first person in my immediate family to have a degree. My best friend thinks I'm foolish because I posed for graduation photos and ordered a class ring. She said I am too old to be having graduation pictures and a ring. I was thrilled to have them, but now I'm wondering if I really am being foolish. Am I trying to recapture the "would have/could have/should have" years? --

ED IN LOUISIANA DEAR ED: Shame on your friend for raining on your parade. With a best friend like this, you should never forget to bring an umbrella.

You're celebrating the fact that as a nontraditional student you have earned your master's degree. That's a laudable accomplishment in any way you would like. Please accept my sincere congratulations, graduate!

DEAR ABBY: I love to read. I have kept every book I have read, so I probably have close to 600 books in my library, which is actually a small room, overflowing with books and nothing else.

Why do you think I can't let go of them? I lend them out to only a select few, and I always make sure they are returned. I could do lovely things with this room if my books weren't in the way, but I can't seem to part with them. -- BOOKWORM IN NEW YORK

DEAR BOOKWORM: It's probably because your books have become an extension of yourself. Because you would like to do something else with the space they occupy, sort through them and keep only the most precious ones. ### Former Bills quarterback, hall of famer Jim Kelly battling cancer of the jaw

BATAVIA, N.Y. (AP) — Buffalo Bills Hall of Fame quarterback Jim Kelly says he has been diagnosed with cancer in his upper jaw bone and will have surgery on June 7.

Kelly is suffering from squamous cell carcinoma, but he has recently undergone tests to show that the cancer is isolated in his jaw and has not spread to other parts of his body.

"The past couple of weeks have been difficult for me," Kelly said. "Because of the nature of social media, I thought it would be best to share with everyone what has been going on with my health."

Monday morning, just before the start of the quarterback's Kelly For Kids charitable foundation's annual celebrity golf tournament.

The announcement was made

"Doctors have told me that my prognosis for recovery is very good," he said.

Kelly will have part of the upper jaw removed, and is unsure whether he will require chemotherapy, which will be determined after surgery. The operation will be performed in Buffalo.

"We caught it in time," Kelly said. "When you hear the word 'cancer,' it automatically scares you. It not only scared me, but my family. But it's like everything. It's another river to cross, another stumbling block. I've been to the top many times. And I've been to the bottom. It's just one of the roller coaster rides I've been on throughout my life.

"It's just another challenge for me and I know I'll beat it.'

Kelly spent 11 seasons with the Bills before retiring following the 1996 campaign. He still holds nearly every significant career franchise passing record — 35,467 yards, 237 touchdowns and 26 300yard games.

"The first thought is you say a prayer that everything works out OK," said Bill Polian, former general manager of the Bills. "Secondly, he didn't earn a reputation as the toughest guy ever to play quarterback for no reason at all. So if anybody can overcome this, Jim can. He takes challenges head Kelly was inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 2002.

"I am extremely confident in my road to recovery," Kelly said. "I plan to tackle this challenge head on, as we Kellys always do, with toughness perseverance and Concerns about the 53-year-old's health were first raised last week when his wife, Jill Kelly, posted a message published on imgur.com. Without going into detail, Jill Kelly noted that the family was going through a "more serious battle under our roof," and asked followers to pray for her husband "for healing."

Later, a youth sports foundation in Sioux Falls, S.D., announced that Kelly would not be able to attend the Hy-Vee/Sanford Legends banquet on June 13 for personal reasons.

Jill Kelly noted the cancellation with a post on her Twitter account on Friday in responding to a person disappointed the quarterback won't be attending the banquet.

"He is disappointed as well," Jill wrote. "But his health must come first! Please pray for him:)"

Jim Kelly has encountered numerous health problems over the past few years, and has had surgery to correct back, neck and hernia problems.

Then, in mid-March, Kelly revealed in an interview with the State Journal-Register of Springfield, Ill., that he recently had surgery to remove a cyst — which he's described as being "the size of a nickel" — from his gums and nasal cavity. As part of the operation, doctors had to pull out his front teeth, Kelly said.

Kelly appeared to be having no setbacks in his recovery, after making numerous public appearances over the past month.

Kelly was in good spirits attending rookie quarterback EJ Manuel's first news conference at the Bills' facility on April 26, a day after Buffalo selected the player in the first round of the

Two weeks ago, Kelly watched a Bills' practice session from the sideline, after which he chatted up several players.

On May 26, Kelly joined country music artist Tim McGraw on stage and threw footballs into the crowd during a concert outside Buffalo.

Jill Kelly posted photos of her husband with McGraw, as well as Jim attending The Preakness in Baltimore on May 18.

"Anytime someone close to you is stricken with this disease, it causes you to take a deep breath and step back," Polian said. "Fortunately, however, when you exhale, you realize, in this day and age, it's not the be-all, end-all that it used to be."

Kelly was upbeat in addressing reporters on Sunday, while attending his charity's annual gala and auction, noting that his 84year-old father Joe was in attendance. He said this year's event was projected to raise close to $5 million. And he noted how this was an opportunity to see many friends and former teammates.

'Jim's a fighter. We think he'll be OK. We're all in his corner,' former Bills receiver Andre Reed said. "He's such a resilient guy. and that's been our motto forever, in whatever we did.

"He's got the support, and Jim will be OK." The Kelly for Kids Foundation was established in 1987, and has since donated tens of millions of dollars to numerous organizations around the region.

Kelly later founded the Hunter's Hope Foundation in honor of his son, Hunter, who was born in 1997 with Krabbe disease.

That's an inherited degenerative disorder of the central and peripheral nervous systems. The disease hinders development of the myelin sheath, a fatty covering that protects the brain's nerve fibers.

Given little more than three years to live, Hunter died at the age of 8 in 2005.

Spray-Bottle Blues Dear Readers: Here is this week's SOUND OFF, about spray bottles:

"It seems I have problems with some spray bottles. The strawlike tube is right at the bottom of the bottle. It is a tight fit, and the last ounce cannot come up because of the way the tube is bent. I also find this in spray-perfume bottles. Perfume is expensive, and it makes me unhappy when I can't use all of it. Why do they make spray bottles that you can't get all the product out of? -- A Reader in Ohio'

Your guess is as good as anyone's! This can be frustrating, as well as wasteful. Here is a Heloise hint: If the tube is a little too long, just snip a tiny amount off the end so it fits better in the bottle and then can draw up the remaining liquid. A few pennies saved! -- Heloise binder clips:

* Use as bookmarks. * Keep a tube of toothpaste rolled up.

FAST FACTS Dear Readers: Other uses for bag from slipping. -- Heloise

BAKING SODA

Dear Heloise: Love your hint that says to use baking soda as a carpet freshener. I took an empty Parmesan-cheese container, washed and dried it, then filled it with baking soda. The holes in the top make it easy to sprinkle out onto the carpet. Any large spice bottle with holes in the top will work.

-- A Reader, via email This is a classic Heloise hint that saves money and makes housework just a little easier.

Why stop at just the carpet? Use baking soda to freshen a trash can, shoes, an empty ice chest or a dishwasher! You can even use it as a dry shampoo for your pets! Just rub some baking soda through your pet's fur (make sure it is dry), let sit for a minute or two and then brush out. Baking soda is a wonderful product to keep on hand. It has so many different uses. Want to know all the ways I use baking soda? Order my pamphlet Heloise's Baking Soda Hints and Recipes. Send $5 with a long, self-addressed, stamped (66 cents) envelope to: Heloise/Baking Soda, P.O. Box 795001, San Antonio, TX 78279-5001. Use baking soda instead of scouring powder to clean counters and stovetops. Just sprinkle a little on a damp sponge and clean away. -- Heloise

BABY KIT Dear Heloise: We had a plethora of extra wipe boxes when my baby was a few months old. We also had dozens of baby washcloths. I took the washcloths and overlap-folded them like the wipes had been, stuck them in an empty box and made a messy-babycleanup kit (for sticky hands and face) for the kitchen! I just collect and toss in the wash, and refill. Simple, clean and not wasteful. -- Kelli-ann B. in

Bridge

NOTHING IS BETTER THAN COUNTING

Sydney J. Harris, a newspaper journalist from Chicago who died in 1986, said, "An idealist believes the short run doesn't count. A cynic believes the long run doesn't matter. A realist believes that what is done or left undone in the short run determines the long run."

A bridge player knows that counting is important in the long run -- the 13 tricks of a deal. Here, how should South play in three no-trump after West leads the club 10?

If you were sitting South, would you have opened one diamond or one club, or passed?

With ace-king, ace, you should almost always open the bidding. It is textbook to bid one diamond because if West overcalls one spade and North makes a negative double, you can rebid two clubs. Note also that after you open one diamond, if

and North responds one heart, it is better to rebid two hearts (missing a fourth trump) than one no-trump (with no spade stopper) or two clubs (which promises five diamonds and risks ending in a 4-2 diamond

In the given auction, two clubs was New Minor Forcing, asking opener to describe his hand further. Two diamonds denied both three spades and four hearts.

South has seven top tricks: one spade, two hearts and four clubs. If an idealist crosses to his hand with a heart to take a diamond or spade finesse, he will go down with this layout.

However, a realist would take the first trick on the board and play a diamond. He would be happy to sacrifice two tricks in the suit to es-

U.S. soccer beats Germany 4-3 in exhibition

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States can head into a key stretch with some added confi-

Clint Dempsey scored twice in a five-minute span of the second half and moved into second place on the U.S. career scoring list, helping the Americans edge a second-string Germany team 4-3 in an exhibition game Sunday.

Preparing for three World Cup qualifiers in a 12-day span beginning Friday, U.S. coach Jurgen Klinsmann watched the Americans take a 4-1 lead and hang on to beat the team he helped win the 1990 World Cup as a player and coached to the 2006 semifinals.

The match, which drew 47,359 to RFK Stadium commemorated the 100th anniversary year of the U.S. Soccer Federation and followed a 4-2 loss Wednesday to a firststring Belgium in Cleveland.

"The feel-good factor is amazing," U.S. goalkeeper Tim Howard said. "The crowd was great, on the centennial anniversary. It was amazing to be a part of that game, and obviously to beat Germany was special."

Jozy Altidore put the Americans ahead in the 13th minute with his first international goal in 1 1-2 years, and the lead widened to 2-0 lead three minutes later on an own goal by No. 4 Germany goalkeeper Marc-Andre ter Stegen, who misjudged a back-

Heiko Westermann cut the deficit for the three-time world champion Germans in the 51st, and Dempsey made it 4-1 with goals in the 60th and 65th. Americans' defensive frailties were exposed late when Max Kruse and Julian Draxler scored their first international goals.

With 35 international goals, Dempsey moved one past Eric Wynalda on the American career list and pulled within 14 of Landon Donovan.

"You're going to look back on the career and be proud of what you've done," Dempsey said. "But at the same time ... your teammates help you. They put you in positions, and they help create chances for you, and you've just got to finish them off."

Dempsey has five goals for the U.S. this year and 13 since Klinsmann took over as coach in July 2011.

"He has the drive. He has the hunger," Klinsmann said. "He's not satisfied today scoring two goals against Germany because he won't be satisfied if he doesn't score against Jamaica.'

The Americans play Friday at Jamaica, June 11 against Panama at Seattle, and June 18 versus Honduras at Sandy, Utah. The U.S. (1-1-1) is third in the six-nation final round of North and Central America and the Caribbean with four points, one behind Panama (1-0-2) and trailing Costa Rica (1-1-1) on goal difference. Honduras (1-1-1) is behind the U.S. on goal difference, while Mexico (0-0-3) has three points and Jamaica (0-1-2)

The top three nations qualify for next year's tournament in Brazil, and the No. 4 team faces Oceania champion New Zealand in a home-and-home playoff for another berth.

"Now the road gets long," Howard said. "Morale, motivation, feel-good factor, that's going to play a huge role, and I don't think it can be understated. Because going down to Jamaica is not going to be easy."

While the U.S. improved to 3-6 against Germany by beating Die Mannschaft for the first time since 1999, the Germans used just one player who started in their last World Cup qualifier, against Kazakhstan in March. Germany was missing its contingent from Champions League finalists Bayern Munich and Borussia Dortmund, and from Real Madrid, which finished its season Saturday.

Klinsmann made four changes to his starting lineup, inserting right back Brad Evans, central defender Matt Besler and midfielders Michael Bradley and Fabian Johnson. Right back Geoff Cameron was dropped along with central defender Clarence Goodson, and midfielders Sacha Kljestan and Brad Davis.

starting in midfield instead of at left back, was limping and was replaced by Davis for the second when the second half began.

Dempsey's run led to the first goal, when he made a crossfield pass to Graham Zusi, who onetimed a cross to Altidore. He moved away from defender Per Mertesacker and sent in a right-footed volley from 8 yards.

The 23-year-old Altidore, who set a record for Americans in Europe by scoring 31 goals this season for the Netherlands' AZ Alkmaar, got his 14th international goal and first from the run of play since June 14, 2011, against Guadeloupe. His only goal since Klinsmann took over had been a penalty kick at Slovenia on Nov. 15, 2011.

"This is a maturing process, and it will continue," Klinsmann said. "He's still young — we often forget how young Jozy actually is because he's been around so long already."

With the Americans pressuring high following a goal kick,

Heat seeking answers entering game 7

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Miami's fearsome threesome has suddenly become a one-man show.

It's already cost the Heat one chance to reach the NBA Finals, and if they don't get things fixed by Monday, the vanishing act could leave the defending champs home sooner than anyone anticipated. Four-time MVP LeBron James scored 29 points, had seven rebounds and six assists, but Chris Bosh and Dwyane Wade couldn't even match those numbers together Saturday night in Miami's 91-77 loss that left the Eastern Conference finals tied at 3-3.

Wade finished with 10 points, two rebounds and one assist, while Bosh added five points, four rebounds and no assists for the Heat, who will host Game 7 on "My rhythm seems off, it's been like that the whole series," Bosh said. "Now I have to go and find it. I've got 48 hours to do that."

Perhaps Bosh's poor showing in this series is Miami's decision to leave Bosh on the perimeter to try and draw Roy Hibbert and David West out of the

For the most part, it hasn't worked. Hibbert had another double-double with 24 points and 11 rebounds, while David West added 11 points and 14 rebounds despite playing through an upper respiratory infection.

Wade's late-season fade has been considered a result of his injured right knee. The perennial All-Star and two-time NBA champ wouldn't bite

"Explain it? You seen it. It was total domination by the Pacers in the third."

> LeBron James Heat small forward

"I don't want to talk about the knee," he said. "I haven't talked about it for the last two months and I'm not about to start now." Instead, the league's most dominant team will spend the next two days preparing for what most people believed inconceivable when this series began a one-game shot to save the season.

Hibbert did everything but pull out the boxing gloves in Game 6, continually contesting Miami's shots to help Indiana stave off elimination.

Paul George scored 28 points, had eight rebounds and five assists, and the Pacers held Miami to 36.1 percent shooting as they booked a trip back to Miami for Game 7 on Monday night.

"Myself and David, we throw ourselves in the fray, in the paint. We like to muck it up," Hibbert said. "Paul and myself, we wanted to make sure we got this for him as well. We didn't want this to be our last game."

It wasn't.

The Pacers have pushed James and his high-scoring, high-profile teammates to the brink of elimination by punching back, and Game 6 followed a familiar story line. The Pacers had a 53-33 rebounding advantage, outscored Miami 44-22 in the paint and limited Miami's shooters to 16 of 54, 29.6 percent,

How have the Pacers done it? With Hibbert controlling the inside after adding MMA training to his off-"Roy Hibbert is making extraordinary plays in the pocket, poise in the pocket we call it," coach Frank Vogel said. "He's getting paint catches and just having great poise, great reads. He's not plowing over guys. He had a charge in Game 5, but has been under

It was everything an elimination game should be. The teams traded baskets and jabs, sometimes literally, and players ignored the bumps and bruises of yet another wrestling match that has made this toughguy series compelling.

Both teams attacked the basket, sometimes with problematic results. Indiana missed about five dunk attempts in the first half and a series of short jumpers, too, costing them precious points.

The Heat struggled, meanwhile, starting the game just 3 of 22 from inside the 3-point line. Miami's Big Three — James, Wade and Bosh — went just 14 of 40. Excluding James, Miami managed only 16 baskets eight 3s and eight 2s.

Tony Stewart wins Cup race at Dover

DOVER, Del. (AP) — With one  $\operatorname{\mathtt{Dig}}$ move, Tony Stewart put Juan Pablo Montoya and a sluggish season well behind him.

After a mundane start, Stewart is back in Victory Lane — and in the thick of Chase contention.

Stewart's outside pass on Montoya with three laps left was enough to win Sunday at Dover International Speedway and snap a 30-race winless

"Our guys at our shop have been digging," Stewart said. "None of these guys get down. We have been down, but they haven't gotten down. That is what carries you to days like today at the end of the day."

Stewart was stuck in 20th in the standings and didn't even have a topfinish before he rallied in Dover. Stewart hadn't won on the concrete mile track since he swept both Cup races in 2000.

The No. 14 team erupted in celebration in the pits after winning for the first time since last July in Daytona.

It was a long time coming for the two-time Cup champ.

it's been such a tough year, Stewart said.

It got a little easier Sunday. Stewart stoutly defended crew chief Steve Addington's performance this year and thanked Hendrick Motorsports for supplying engines to his Stewart-Haas Racing team.

He also knows their work is far from

"We realize this could put the 14 team in contention to make the Chase," he said. "That's not good

Meaning, he wants to not only make the 12-driver field, but know he's a top contender to win another champi-

His 48th career win pushed him to 16th in the points standings and aided his cause for a wild-card spot.

The two drivers in the 11th to 20th spot in the standings with the most wins earn a slot in the Chase for the Sprint Cup championship.

Stewart is the only driver in those spots with a win.

"It's been very hard when you have the start of the season that we had,"

Stewart said. "You start questioning, you start doubting, you start looking for answers that you don't have the knowledge to diagnose.

"That makes you feel very helpless at times.'

Seven-time Dover winner Jimmie Johnson appeared to have the car to beat, but jumped a restart and had to serve a pass-through penalty. Johnson argued over the radio and stayed on the track before he finally hit pit road.

With Johnson out of the picture, Montoya and Stewart battled for the lead the rest of the race.

Jeff Gordon was third, followed by Kyle Busch and Brad Keselowski. NASCAR said Keselowski, the reigning series champion, failed post-race inspection because the entire front of his No. 2 Ford was too low.

This was crew chief Paul Wolfe's first race back after a two-race suspension for unapproved parts. Stewart tested at Dover and hoped that would help at a track that's given him fits the last few years.

He hadn't finished better than 20th in his last four races at Dover.

Pacers Roy Hibbert fined for gay slur, profanity

MIAMI (AP) — Indiana Pacers center Roy Hibbert was fined $75,000 on Sunday by the NBA for using a gay slur and cursing during his news conference after Game 6 of the Eastern Conference finals. Hibbert also apologized for the comments. "While Roy has issued an apology, which is no doubt sincere, a fine is necessary to reinforce that such offensive comments will not be tolerated by the NBA,' Commissioner David Stern said in a statement.

Earlier Sunday, the team issued a statement from Hibbert in which he said he was sorry for his "insensitive remarks."

"They were disrespectful and offensive and not a reflection of my personal views," he said in the statement. "I used a slang term that is not appropriate in any setting, private or public, and the language I used definitely has no place in a public forum, especially over live television."

After Saturday night's win, Hibbert ended a response to a question about his defense on Miami's LeBron James with "no homo," a phrase that implies fear of appearing gay. He also called reporters an offensive term. Before departing for Miami, where Game 7 will be played Monday night, Pacers coach Frank Vogel told reporters he had already spoken with Hibbert and described the 2012 All-Star center as "contrite." Players were not available Sunday. With the series tied at three games apiece and a trip to the NBA Finals at stake Monday, distractions are the last thing this young Pacers squad needs as it tries to prevent the Heat from making what many expected to be a stroll into their third straight NBA Finals. The Pacers have appeared in the finals only once, in 2000, when they lost in six games to the Los Angeles Lakers. Hibbert had drawn a key charge on James in Indiana's 91-77 victory that evened the series and lamented not providing enough help defensively to teammate Paul George on James in Game 3. Hibbert was later asked why he finished so low in voting for Defensive Player of the Year, telling reporters that it was "because y'all (expletives) don't watch us play throughout the year, to tell you the truth." The 7-foot-2 Hibbert's turn has been a major reason Indiana has pushed the defending champion Heat to a Game 7.
